

Krish V. Krishnan - Art / Travel Book Release Spring 2015

I remember talking to some of you during the AMP program about my frustrations with the world of print, but at long last I managed to find a publisher for my Art / Travel book “Rambles into Sacred Realms - Journeys in Pen and Paint” – a product more than 25 years in the making, drawing and writing about some powerfully exotic locales in the world.

Some of my work has been executed under interesting circumstances - from enduring the suspicious glares of gun-toting Israeli soldiers as I worked on a hurried watercolor of the Western Wall . . . to fleeing a staccato of guerrilla gunfire at a spectacular Khmer temple along the Thai border . . . to a hilariously splattered palette in a Cambodian shrine when a cobra slithered between my feet, I have adventured around the globe seeking out places of divine power, portraying them through my writing and artwork.

Such experiences— ranging from the sublime to the ridiculous, the mundane to the enlightening — find their way into my book featuring 12 fascinating destinations around the world each set in a different country, accompanied by over 100 pieces of my artwork executed in a variety of mediums.

I am now looking at a release Spring of 2015.

Please cheer me along the way, and let me know if you can help in any to publicize the message of my book that I so passionately feel about in your countries. Much of the information is on my website - www.kvkrishnan.com

I will be sure to meet up with you all in my next trips...

